Éco-scènes de vie citoyenne

Objectives

One main teaching goal of Education is to encourage the personal development in a civil community, which cares about the environment, and is able to develop good practices through new models of eco-citizenship.

Both creative Theatre and discovery of a region , rich not only in ancient history, but also in contemporary culture, permits one to achieve our goal.

Not towards stimulating tourism nor towards the fostering of actors, rather, toward the promotion of environmentally responsible citizens.

Activities

Engaging in theatrical activity, reflecting on one's eco-gestures together with visiting and discovering the remarkable places of a region rich in history and culture, will enable one to reach these goals within a fully eco-sustainable framework.

Communication activities in which one's mother tongue is paired with the use of a foreign language will alternate with guided tours of the region, with special attention focused on the main theatres or relevant historical sites and environmental lessons

Impact

Achievement of these goals will induce in the participants the awareness of being young Europeans who, through theatre, will not only come to master two languages but also be able to make enriching comparisons between two cultures: not only young actors, but responsible citizens.

The positive impact to the school will manifest itself through the creation of an "ecological supervisory task force" within the school itself, which will in turn, become the contact group for other local institutions.
